The usual parole pledge extends only to active service against the enemy. A prisoner released on parole drills recruits, quells civil commo-tions or fights other enemies. A soldier taken prisoner has no authority to pledge himself never to serve against a particular enemy. He cannot throw off thus lightly the duty himself to the enemy, says Pearson's

Good Luck Brings Bonus. Foreign steamship companies has a rule by which the pay of captains and engineers is increased where a accidents occur for a year. On the British steamship lines the captains then settles in the lower limbs receive from £300 to £1,200 a year, without perquisites. If, at the end of the year, a British commander's boat has met with no accident he gets a bonus. The British lines think this system of reward has a tendency to make commanders more careful. The pay of an engineer on the German lines ranges from £240 to £500 a year. The pay of the British engineer does not differ materially from these figures, but he also receives a bonus if his engines run without accident during the year.— Chicago Chroniele.
